ANNUAL CONFERENCE

of Indian Society of Professional Social Work (ISPSW)

International Conference on

INNOVATIVE TECHNOLOGIES & SOCIAL WORK

Transforming the Contemporary Social Work Profession

25-27 March 2026

Venue | Amrita Vishwa Vidyapeetham
Ettimadai, Coimbatore Campus (offline only)

CONCEPT NOTE

In the rapidly evolving landscape of global development and social innovation, technology stands as both a catalyst and a bridge for the social work profession and social science disciplines at large. This international conference, “Innovative Technologies and Fieldwork: Transforming the Social Work Profession,” convenes distinguished practitioners, educators, technologists, policymakers, and civil society leaders to advance integrative knowledge and practice across diverse domains. The conference’s objectives seek not just to foster dialogue—but also to engineer actionable solutions—to strengthen technology’s role in enhancing the effectiveness, reach, and ethical rigor of social work and allied disciplines. By nurturing evidence-based research, building professional capacities, and establishing global standards for technology adoption, this event foregrounds the importance of equity, inclusion, and human rights within all technological advancements. In particular, it aims to prioritize gender equality, social inclusion, and the development of best practices that meet the needs of marginalized and vulnerable populations.

Key thematic areas span from digital innovation in fieldwork, technology-enabled service delivery, and artificial intelligence, to immersive technologies and emerging advances in health, education, and governance. Sessions will address use of technology in social science research, trauma-informed care from human rights perspectives, and empowering developmental sector organizations—while also focusing on national missions such as Viksit Bharat 2047, Digital India, and Skill India. Through these themes and sub-themes, participants will engage with examples of cutting-edge practice—mobile data collection, telehealth, AI-powered analytics, blockchain, and digital inclusion strategies—reflecting the sector’s forward-thinking response to contemporary challenges. By documenting lessons learned from technology implementation in diverse settings, examining ethical frameworks, and fostering international collaboration, the conference is committed to developing robust policy recommendations for local and global change. These shared explorations aim to not only address workforce shortages and promote technology competencies, but also elevate standards of practice and research for Scopus-indexed publication and lasting impact. In so doing, the conference aspires to chart a transformative path for social work and social sciences—one that is data-driven, inclusive, ethically sound, and truly responsive to the needs of society in the digital age.

CONFERENCE OBJECTIVES

Primary Objectives

- i. Advance Knowledge Integration: Foster dialogue between social work practitioners and technology innovators to generate research-based evidence on technology's role in enhancing practice effectiveness,
- ii. Build Professional Capacity: Equip social workers with knowledge of emerging technologies and evidence-based strategies for implementation, including considerations for technology-enabled supervision, evaluation, and data collection in diverse settings.
- iii. Establish Global Standards: Develop consensus on best practices for technology adoption in social work that respect ethical considerations, cultural contexts, and vulnerable population safeguards.
- iv. Promote Gender Equity and Inclusion: Prioritize discussions on how technology can advance gender equality, address social inequalities, and enhance services for marginalized populations, particularly in fieldwork and community engagement.
- v. Fieldwork and technology: Foster the fieldwork in social science disciplines to promote technology for advancing the use of technologies to promote in diverse settings.

SECONDARY OBJECTIVES

- i. Identify technology-enabled solutions for addressing social work workforce shortages and burnout
- ii. Examine ethical frameworks for technology use in sensitive social work contexts

CONFERENCE SIGNIFICANCE AND EXPECTED IMPACT

Technology for societal good and its Significance for the Social Work Profession

The integration of innovative technologies into social work fieldwork represents a fundamental shift in how the profession can extend reach, enhance effectiveness, and improve outcomes for vulnerable populations. This conference will address the need and impact of technology in social sciences.

Legitimizing Technology Discourse: By hosting a dedicated international conference, social work establishes itself as a profession seriously engaging with technological innovation and demonstrating evidence-based approaches to adoption.

Building Evidence Base: Rigorous conference proceedings will contribute to peer-reviewed literature on what technologies work, for whom, under what conditions, and with what outcomes—filling critical knowledge gaps.

Accelerating Practice Innovation: Practitioners will gain exposure to vetted innovations, reducing the time lag between technological development and professional application.

Influencing Policy: Research-based discussions will inform government, regulatory bodies, and international organizations' policies on technology in social work, including alignment with UN Sustainable Development Goals and national gender equity frameworks.

Addressing Equity Concerns: By prioritizing gender equity, social inclusion, and cultural responsiveness as cross-cutting themes, the conference ensures that technology's benefits are distributed equitably and potential harms to marginalized populations are prevented.

EXPECTED OUTCOMES

For Participants:

- Expanded knowledge of technological innovations applicable to their practice contexts
- Networking with international peers, practitioners, and technology developers
- Visibility for their research through conference presentation and Scopus-indexed publication
- Collaboration opportunities for future research partnerships
- Professional development credits and continuing education recognition

For the Profession:

- A peer-reviewed body of research on technology and social work practice
- Established best practices and ethical guidelines for technology adoption
- Policy recommendations for national and international social work bodies
- Evidence for advocacy regarding technology's role in addressing social challenges
- Models for gender-equitable, culturally responsive technology implementation
- Publication opportunity: Special publication opportunity in collaboration with reputed publishers, a Scopus-indexed journal. Selected papers presented at the conference will be considered for publication in a dedicated topical collection, subject to peer review and editorial approval. APC's are additional.

For Society:

- Enhanced social work capacity to serve disadvantaged communities
- Evidence-based approaches to technology's role in addressing social problems
- Improved access to social services, particularly in underserved areas
- Strengthened understanding of technology's role in advancing gender equality and social justice
